FINNEY ROUGHING
IT IN FAR BRAZIL

Local Ball Player and Railroad Man Writes About Experiences.

Tom Finney, formerly in the claim department of the Southwestern, and a crack amateur baseball player, is now roughing it in the wilds of South America. He is now located at Porto Velho, Rio Madeira, Brazil, and is in the employ of the Madeira-Mamore railroad as a voucher clerk in the auditor's office. In a letter to his brother, J. J. Finney, the El Paso railroad man, he writes that he is well pleased with his new position and prospects.

The town of Porto Velho is a new town on the railroad line with 2000 population and is one of the modern cities of South America, being lighted by electricity, waterworks and sewerage. It is about 1200 miles from the mouth of the Amazon river into which the Madeira empties near Manaus. Finney arrived there on January 19, after leaving El Paso on November 28.

He was quarantined for 13 days on board the Benth line steamer Hilary because of yellow fever, the time being spent on an island in the Madeira river. The rainy season is now on in Brazil, he writes, and it is not during the day, but the nights are cool enough to sleep under blankets.

The railroad for which Finney is working is being built from the falls of Madeira to connect the Madeira and the Mamore rivers in order to give Bolivia a outlet for its trade to the east. Both of these rivers are deep waterways and are only separated by great hills which prevent water traffic.

Young Finney has acquired the name of "Tex" since he went to Porto Velho, because he is the only Texan among the Americans who are employed on the South American railroad.

BASKETBALL.

A. last year.

EL PASO WILL BOOST THE NEW
AUTO ROAD

Realizes the Advantage of the Tularosa-Roswell Mail Line.

El Paso is going to boost for the Tularosa-Roswell automobile line, and the chamber of commerce is going to lead the boosting. As a result of a special meeting of the chamber's board Wednesday night all political pressure will be brought to bear and representatives of the local chamber of commerce will confer with Roswell residents.

The meeting was called to hear James A. Carroll, superintendent of the Mesquero Indian reservation, who is the father of the plan to establish a mail and passenger automobile line from Tularosa to Roswell as a better route for all concerned than the Vaughn-Roswell way. Mr. Carroll illustrated his talk with a map drawn for the purpose. He showed the line proposed route would be of 115 miles, the same distance as the abandoned one, but that the Tularosa-Roswell route would touch on nine settlements, now covered by star mail routes, while the old line, which was abandoned but may be reestablished, only served Roswell, with absolutely no intermediate points.

Interest of El Paso.

"El Paso's interests are our interests," said the reservation superintendent. "El Paso is the clearing house of all of New Mexico and Arizona. It is 95 miles to Tularosa over the El Paso & Southwestern, and then it is 115 miles overland to Roswell, passing nine towns on the way. I believe that route would save the government $2500. I think that the contractors of the old route would be willing to accept the contract for the new way at a fair additional cost needed for the road improvement. They have invested in their equipment which would serve either way."

Mr. Carroll not only told of the advantages of the proposed line from commercial point of view, but described the natural beauties of the trip through the canyons. He said that in a distance of 26 miles, the roadway rose from an elevation of 4450 feet to a height of 8000 feet, then dropping along a gentle slope into the Pecos valley. It is Mr. Carroll's dream that the distance between the two valleys will become a national park rivaling Yellowstone, and that Cloudfelter will be a center of a nation's playground. He said that he intended to ask his department for permission to allow cottage sites for desirable resorters on the reservation, saying that he considered it would be a good thing for the Indian, giving him contact with educated Americans and an outlet for his ranch produce and curios.

Great Advantage to El Paso.
David McKnight, chief clerk in the railway mail service at El Paso, vouched for the general correctness of Mr. Carroll's map. "There is no question but that this route would be a great advantage to El Paso," said Mr. McKnight. "I can make no prediction as to the attitude of the department, but it is always on the alert to improve the service. But it seems to me that this would appeal to the department." Mr. McKnight questioned the attitude of the Roswell people to the new route as against the reestablish-ment of the Vaughn line. But an only objection would be that Chicago mail would arrive two hours and 30 minutes later. The consensus of opinion seemed to be, however, that Roswell would favor the new line, whether or not the old route is to be continued. James A. Dick moved that Roswell people be conferred with, and the motion was carried. It is suggested that El Pasoans who own automobiles run the delegates to the New Mexico turn over the proposed route. A committee of five persons will be appointed by judge J. M. Goggin, vice president of the chamber of commerce, who presided over the meeting. S. J. Freudenthal moved that a telegram and letter be sent Judge A. B. Fall, now in Washington, D. C., asking him to do all possible in the capital.

WATER USERS TO ACCEPT THE OFFER

Will Use $60,000 Government Funds to Build Concrete Ditch.

Roswell, N. M., March 2.—The shareholders of the Rio Hondo Water Users' association have decided to accept the offer of the United States government to loan them $60,000 for ten years without interest, for the building of a concrete ditch 16 miles long from a point four miles north of the "Diamond A" ranch where the owners of that ranch made its appropriation of water, to the intake of the reservoir.

L. T. Hands, of Sandusky, O., representing the American Roller Mills company of Middletown, O., is here investigating the feasibility of establishing a branch "shaping mill" in Roswell. The price of coal and electricity he finds too high, but thinks crude oil, if the price can be reduced a little, may solve the problem.

Work has been commenced by the Roswell Electric Light and Gas company in its new building to be put up around and over the old one, in which to install the new machinery for pumping water for irrigating the Berrendo irrigated farms.

The poultry raisers and fanciers of Roswell and vicinity held a meeting in the commercial club rooms to discuss the poultry interests of Chaves county.
